WEST LIBERTY, MORGAN COUNTY, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1938

WHOLE NUMBER 1449

The Spiritual Sense

"During the past six years," said President Roosevelt at Oklahoma City, "the people of this nation have definitely said 'yes' to the old Biblical question—'Am I my brother's keeper?' In these six years I sense a growing devotion to the teachings of the scriptures, to a greater willingness on the part of the individual to help his neighbor and to live less unto and for himself alone. It is in this spirit that your national government seeks to carry on its task. It is in this spirit that, in the consideration of every problem, our first question is 'What makes for the greatest good to the greatest number?' America needs a government of constant progress along liberal lines. America requires that this progress be sane and honest. America calls for government with a soul."

PEDESTRIAN RIGHTS

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has ruled that pedestrians have equal rights with automobiles on highways that have no sidewalks.

This is the law, undoubtedly, and yet few pedestrians care to contest their right with an automobile, approaching at sixty miles an hour. Those that make the mistake leave handsome claims for damages to their heirs when they stand on their rights and maintain their ground as the vehicle approaches.

This brings us to the question why sidewalks are not provided on highways in congested areas. Surely the State Government that spends millions of dollars to give autoists means of transportation can afford to spend some money to give pedestrians safety as they go about their journeys. It is about time that somebody in authority, somewhere, gave a few thoughts to the rights of pedestrians, now theoretically upheld in the courts.

NEW AUTO DRIVERS

New drivers who do not have Kentucky licenses, people coming in for residence from other states and Kentucky motorists who put off renewing until after August 1, when their 1937-38 licenses have expired, will be considered as new operators and required to fill in a larger form giving additional information about themselves and their driving experience. These records will be sent to the Department at Frankfort and their licenses will come directly to the applicant by mail. The court clerk will issue temporary receipts for their fees which will entitle the motorists to drive until their regular licenses arrive.

The Highway Patrol is setting up files of all operators, so that the driving career of each one may be followed and, if necessary, checked for violations and accidents. The Department's announcement explained the new system that enables it to keep each individual driver's record at its fingertips.

Another revision of the licensing procedure called for under the amended law is the examination of first-time applicants.

VOODOO GOLD

A story written by the early Mark Twain told of the theft of a bank's gold from a midwestern township. The thieves filled the vaults with feathers. They did the job undetected, took the loot to the hills, and there waited for the expected hullabaloo. To their amazement nothing happened. The substitution was never found out, and the economic life of the community went on undisturbed.

One is reminded of the story by the report that a party of bankers have been allowed to take a peep at the immense stock of the nation's gold out at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Suppose they had found feathers instead of gold. Would it have made any difference to the nation's economic life, presuming the guards had pledged them to secrecy, "or else"? Not at all. No longer is gold humpty Dumpty, sitting on its pedestal in solitary glory. Management sits beside it. That is to say, the nation's money is regulated, not by the amount of gold, but by the needs of the people as determined by the monetary authorities in Washington.

Mark Twain would have chuckled to read of the banker's visit to Fort Knox. His story was an economic parable showing that money is credit. If, as Tom Paine once said, credit is "suspicion asleep," then there is all the more reason to preserve confidence in it, now that its golden prop has been removed. —Christian Science Monitor

Bank Statements

In this issue we print the financial statements of the two banking institutions of Morgan county. The statements show each of the banks in sound condition. Both of these banks carry federal deposit insurance and are rendering excellent service to the business interests of Morgan county.

SHEEP MEETING

Farmers interested in buying sheep, meet at the county agent's office on July 22. Since the flood has destroyed a lot of our grain, sheep can be carried thru the winter probably easier than any other class of livestock, since they require a smaller amount of grain.

Prices of lambs have held up good this year in spite of the fact that we did have a large lamb crop. Breeding ewes are moving rapidly.

It is hoped that all farmers interested in sheep will be at the meeting Friday in order that we may make preparations for purchasing sheep.

Barkley Speaks Here

Senator Alben W. Barkley spoke to a crowded courthouse audience and thru loudspeakers to a large overflow crowd here on Tuesday in behalf of his candidacy for re-nomination for U. S. senator from Kentucky. Mr. Barkley detailed his record as a supporter of the humanitarian policies of President Roosevelt and charged that the opponents of Roosevelt policies were the chief supporters of Governor Chandler, who is trying to secure this nomination.

Unusual Plant

Tuesday night Mrs. T. H. Caskey called in her neighbors and friends to see her night blooming night series, sometimes called star of Bethlehem or babe in a manger. The flower is open only one night and is a rare sight. The white petals were six inches long and formed a cup four inches in diameter at the top. Inside it took no imagination to see a star and a cluster of stamens to represent the manger. The flower had a delightful fragrance that was noticeable several feet away.

Mt Sterling Fair

The Montgomery county fair at Mt. Sterling, one of Kentucky's big fairs, opens Tuesday, July 26, and runs the rest of the week. A strong feature of this fair is horse racing, with musical and theatrical performances. A large carnival for the midway and the various county fair attractions will be in evidence. F. M. Allen is president and R. L. Barnard is secretary of the event.

Girl Scouts at Camp

Mr. and Mrs. J. Blaine Nickell took Misses Katherine Wells, Betty Jean Nickell, and Anna Ruth Lykins to the Bluegrass Girl Scout Camp Sunday for a week's stay. The camp is a beautiful site about 13 miles from Lexington on the Richmond road, along the Kentucky river.

Buys Farm

George Haney of West Liberty last week bought the Sallie Pack farm of about 150 acres at Mize. Mrs. Pack expects to sell her personal property at public auction and Mr. Haney will get possession of the property in the near future.

Preaching at Wells Hill

Pastor Rosco Brong of the West Liberty Baptist church held services at the Wells Hill schoolhouse last Saturday night and Sunday afternoon and will preach there again this Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, July 23 and 24.

Uncle Henry Here

Uncle Henry and his Kentucky mountaineers of station WHAS will be at the courthouse tonight at 8 o'clock. This appearance is sponsored by the Girl Scout troop. The Girl Scouts will sell cold drinks. Everyone is urged to attend this night's entertainment.

MOTLEY

Olen Motley, a strong and robust citizen of Ezel, died last night at a Mt. Sterling hospital after an operation for gallstones. Mr. Motley was aged about 48 years, and was a man of about 200 pounds weight. He leaves a wife and small son about seven years of age.

Chandler to Speak

Governor A. B. Chandler will speak at the courthouse at West Liberty at 1 o'clock Tuesday, July 26, in behalf of his candidacy for the office of U. S. senator from Kentucky. The governor is speaking from three to five times a day and has been in nearly all the counties of the state.

FEDERAL FUNDS

Government receipts in the fiscal year 1938, which ended June 30, amounted to $6,241,661,226. This exceeds those of any other year in the country's history except 1920. Total expenditures, exclusive of debt retirement, was $7,701,000,000. The gross public debt, as the year ended, amounted to $37,164,740,315.

Visit at Stanton

Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Stacy and children Joe and Frances Ann went to Stanton on Saturday night to visit Mrs. Stacy's nephew, Henry Carter. Mr. and Mrs. James Perry and son Jimmy, of Ashland, were also there for the week end. A good time was enjoyed by all. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carter returned with Mr. and Mrs. Stacy on Sunday afternoon and stayed till after the speaking Tuesday, when they returned home.

WILL PAY DEPOSITORS

Within a short time the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is expected to begin payments to depositors of the Bank of Milburn, Milburn, Kentucky, which closed on July 11, 1938.

The bank held total deposits of approximately $60,000 at the time of suspension and it is estimated that practically the entire amount was insured by the Corporation. There were about 300 depositors in the bank.

This was the 10th closing of an insured bank in the State of Kentucky since the beginning of deposit insurance on January 1, 1934.

ENJOYED FINE VISIT

Mrs. J. D. Whiteaker of Cannel City has returned from a tour thru Ohio, Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, and Connecticut.

In New Concord, Ohio, Mrs. Whiteaker visited Muskingum college, the log cabin in which William Rainey Harper was born nearly a hundred years ago, rocked the old fashioned cradle in which he was rocked, rang the bell used at the time of Mr. Harper's college days. In 1870 at the age of fourteen Mr. Harper graduated from Muskingum college and was chosen to deliver the Hebrew salutatory at commencement.

In southern Ohio she saw "Serpent Mound," made of clay with an open mouth which holds an egg of clay 160 feet long, together with much history about smaller mounds, which was especially interesting.

In Zanesville, Ohio, she was attracted to the exhibit of "Weller Pottery," made from native clay. This pottery is shipped to all parts of the United States and exported to many foreign countries. It is very beautiful and very expensive, ranging in price from a few dollars to several hundred dollars. She also crossed the "Y" bridge There is only one other bridge in the world so constructed.

In Cambridge, Ohio, she had the privilege of visiting many points of interest and seeing the beautiful glass manufactured in that city.

In Bronxville, N. Y., she visited Sarah Lawrence college, which is a place of wealth and beauty, and from there she motored along the beautiful palisades of the Hudson river to Tarrytown, N. Y., and viewed the grave, home, and statue of Washington Irving, and visited the old Dutch church erected in 1697 in Sleepy Hollow which Irving attended. She crossed the Headless Horseman bridge described by Irving in the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

In Ossining, N. Y., she especially enjoyed the visit to Sing Sing prison, and was privileged to look on a ball game by the prisoners. Much history was linked with the prison, especially Richard Aldrich, once more who escaped the Sing Sing prison in 1934.

The Courier is pleased to announce that Mrs. Whiteaker has returned home after a most enjoyable trip. She has seen many interesting places and has had a most interesting and profitable trip. She has seen many interesting places and has had a most interesting and profitable trip. She has seen many interesting places and has had a most interesting and profitable trip.

PACK HORSE LIBRARY

The people of Morgan county are much interested in the WPA pack horse library project. Around 200 books and 100 magazines are lent out of the center at West Liberty each week. The carriers visit the homes in the county and report that all their readers are anxious to receive reading material. Each of the carriers has a center centrally located in her section of the county, where posters are put up stating the time of the carrier's visit there, and many of the people are there waiting for books to read.

Otho Perkins and M. F. Perkins, of this county, have made several donations to the library, this week bringing in five more books, which are greatly appreciated. Yale college donated 100 books on July 18. Everyone is welcome to come to the library and read.

Camp Meeting

A camp meeting under the management of H. M. Halsey will be held at Mize beginning August 5 and continuing to and including Aug. 28. Rev. G. Dean Smith and wife, evangelists of Lima, Ohio, will be present all thru the meeting. Music will be a strong feature of the meeting. Come and enjoy the meeting with us.

Adkins Reunion

The annual Adkins reunion formerly held at Grayson will be held on Redwine Hill near Elliott County line and the place of the annual home gathering of the community on Sunday, August 14th. Everybody invited. Bring your dinner and stay all day.

FARMERS' COLUMN

Early Cover Crops

Tests made at the Kentucky agricultural experiment station indicate that cover crops are often seeded too late to give best results. Suggested dates for various crops are: Vetch, July 15-Oct. 15; crimson clover, July 20-Aug. 20; barley, Aug. 20-Sept. 20; rye, Aug. 20-Oct. 1; and wheat, Oct. 5-Oct. 15.

It also has been found that farmers often do not use sufficient seed. Suggested acre rates are: Vetch, 30-40 pounds; crimson clover, 15-20 pounds; barley, 6-8 pecks; rye, 8-8 pecks; and wheat, 5-6 pecks.

The application of liming materials and superphosphate often is needed for best results. Even in the bluegrass region, much of the land responds to lime and phosphate treatment. The use of these materials also benefits crops which follow the cover crops. Inoculation of legume seeds is necessary where a legume is being grown for the first time.

Cover crops not only prevent erosion, but tests made at the Kentucky experiment station show that they also reduce the loss of plant food by leaching. The loss of nitrogen, one of the most expensive plant foods, was more than 25 times greater on uncultivated soil than where a cover crop had been used during the winter.

Cover crops properly handled furnish excellent winter and spring pasture. In addition, they protect the soil. Soil, and moisture is considered "dead" if it is not being used, and it helps to conserve a great deal of raising all kinds of crops.

Clover Seed Crop

Information received at the agricultural experiment station at Lexington indicates that a large acreage of clover seed may be harvested for seed this summer. Many small farms have gone to the station for information about seed production in sections which ordinarily do not raise seed.

As the value of seed on the farm is determined by its quality, it is of advantage to "clean" the seed to certain weeks in the field in so far as possible," says a statement issued by Dr. E. N. Ferguson of the agronomy department of the experiment station.

Seed of clover should be cut and removed from the field, straw spread on top, and turned over a blow fan. Do not destroy them. Buckhorns should be cut underneath or pulled out by the roots. Stop weeds from growing. To keep weeds from growing, it is necessary to the production of clover seed that will meet market requirements, or, for that matter, that will be suitable for sowing on the farm which produces it, for if one sows weed seeds, he is sure to reap weeds. Clover seed that is almost free of weed seed can be cleaned with little loss, whereas impure seed cannot be cleaned without great loss of good clover seed.

"Harvesting the seed crop presents only a small problem. Its main consideration is that it be handled in such a way as to shatter as little of the seed as possible. The use of a buncher or windrow attachment for the sickle bar is satisfactory, or the crop may be allowed to lie in the swath and then taken up with a rake while the material is in case.

"The material should be hulled as soon as thoroughly cured; otherwise it should be placed in a stack or barn until it can be hulled. It is not necessary to rot the material in the field in order to hull the seed, tho it makes hulling somewhat easier. Leaving in the field to rot almost always results in much loss of seed, because in damp weather the bunches or windrows must be turned frequently to keep seed from sprouting and much seed is shattered. If rainy weather sets in, the crop is lost. Therefore it is best to stack or house the crop as soon as it is thoroughly cured unless it can be hulled at once.

"Hulling is satisfactorily done by either the old type clover seed huller or by a grain thresher with a hulling attachment that is properly adjusted. The small combine harvester will usually operate satisfactorily in red clover, tho if there is sufficient rain to keep the stems green or to stimulate the growth of new shoots, it will be necessary to cut and cure the crop and then hull it."

Strawberry Returns Good

Despite late frost, 516 carloads of strawberries were shipped from Paducah, and large quantities were trucked to market. Baker Elliott, a McCracken county farmer, picked 723 crates from five acres, and many farmers reported yields of 125 to 140 crates to the acre. New settings are above normal and the plants are doing well, according to County Agent Joe Hunt.

Hybrid Corn Tried

Breckinridge county farmers planted about 1,200 acres of hybrid corn in an effort to improve acre yields so less land would be needed in corn growing. County Agent Will B. Ray estimated hybrid corn will yield 10 bushels to the acre more than common kinds, giving the county an extra 12,000 bushels from the same acreage and worth, at 50 cents a bushel, $6,000. The county farm bureau secured hybrid seed for its members.

Alfalfa for Silage

To increase his supply of home-produced feeds, L. D. Richards, Gallatin county dairyman, put six acres of the first cutting of alfalfa in the silo. Eight gallons or 40 to 50 pounds of molasses were added to each ton of hay. This was done by letting the molasses run from a barrel on to the hay as it went thru the ensilage cutter. Results of the experiment will be checked by Mr. Richards and by the county agent, William T. Straw.

PHOSPHATE FERTILIZER

Twelve carloads of triple superphosphate fertilizer have been received in this county under the soil conservation program. Farmers who have received this fertilizer are getting large increases in yields of pastures and hay crops.

As you understand, the use of this fertilizer is another way of earning all of your soil building goal. If you have not as yet made application for fertilizer it may be a good thing if you would do so. You should do so at once as the supply of this fertilizer is subject to exhaustion.

Last year many farmers came to the office in September and October and wanted to get government fertilizer but the supply had been exhausted and they could not get it.

The use of phosphate fertilizer on our land is probably one of the best practices offered in the soil conservation program of Morgan county. This practice especially would be fine to carry out when sowing crimson clover and small grains this fall. The fertilizer would make the crimson clover and small grains grow rapidly, thus affording us good pastures this winter and early spring. This, we believe, would be a good way to offset the damage done by our recent flood.

To The Farmer---

You have dealt, man to man, with "Happy" Chandler. Have you ever had any dealing with Barkley? Do you believe Barkley was responsible, either directly or indirectly, for the "Cut Out" checks you received from the Government? He was NOT.

Happy Chandler gave you good rural roads, lowest land taxes in history, better schools, lower truck fees, and relieved you of the Sales Tax. . . . Barkley voted AGAINST continuation of low interest rates at Farm Loan Banks; AGAINST low rate refinancing farm mortgages; he failed to protect the Kentucky Farmer in the acreage allotment and allowed higher percentages to be given competing states. And Barkley joined hands with the sales tax crowd and made them his campaign managers.

To The Businessman---

You are no longer a collector of State sales taxes. You are now doing business in the most business-like State in the United States. You do not have to bow to the discrimination of a bi-partisan combine. Your business is safe from a mortgage to pay a State debt. Because Governor Chandler has safeguarded your interests.

To MOM and DAD and ALL OF THE FOLK

Governor Chandler has pledged you that when elected he will NEVER cast a vote to send your sons to fight a war on foreign soil. Senator Barkley did that. You believe in the future of your children. You, as a parent, want to see youth advance and take its place in the social and economic structure of the Nation. . . . A vote for "Happy" Chandler is a vote for the future of your children. . . . He pledges to prevent further discrimination against Kentucky in Federal enactments. His heart is in Kentucky and with Kentuckians. Senator Barkley, who refuses to stand on his own record as a public servant, knows Kentucky only when it is necessary for him to seek office again.

To The Veteran---

"Happy" Chandler has supported you 100% because he is one of you and knows your problems. Alben Barkley voted to cut the compensation of Kentucky veterans disabled in service 25% and voted to cut 18,000 Kentucky World War Veterans entirely off the Federal Pension rolls.

SQUARE MEALS

When meat soars so high that any of us could believe that the cow really jumped over the moon, I get waterings of the mouth as I think of the days of the square meal, an institution that is certainly less common than it used to be. Just why it was called square I do not know unless that word signifies something well filled in all directions. If one named it according to the way one looked and felt after an encounter with a square meal the word round would be more appropriate. But square it was called, and square it will remain, with all of its delightful associations.

Scientists talk about atrophy of certain organs, that is, they grow weaker or smaller through long periods of time. I fear our digestive tracts have weakened greatly since the old days when a square meal three times a day was supposed to be the minimum of what was expected of any one who was up and about. If some of us were to indulge in such an orgy of eating as we once used to, a half dozen doctors would have to be called in to save us. When I think of the actual quantities that I could hide in a rather lanky, youthful body after plowing all morning, I actually wonder why I did not pass away in early youth, like so many of the boys in the tearful stories that we read in those days.

When a fellow is genuinely hungry and has used up about all his store of energy, dainty things are entirely out of place. They will do well enough for a topping-off course, but for the first few minutes one must have cornbread, hog's-jowl, turnip greens, or green beans, sauerkraut, with plenty of meat. Fried pies, good as they are, belong in the latter course; green-apple pies in season help out during the last few minutes of the meal. Milk used to be regarded not as a food but as a means to wash down the square meal. A jug or pitcher of it fresh from the spring house can help some of the famishing feeling brewed by pitchfork or cutting tobacco.

Square meals are usually made up of grub or victuals. It would be bad manners to speak of square meals in the presence of home economics experts. The purpose of a square meal, no matter what may be the purpose of a luncheon or a dinner or a tea, is to fill, fill to satisfaction. If it can accomplish that purpose, what matter whether it is altogether dainty or in accordance with science? A few thousand calories more or less may make all the difference in the world between one luncheon and another; the more calories the better when one is trying to fill a vast and profound gut engendered by hard farm work.—Kentucky Folklore Series.

FARM TOPICS

KNOW TOPSOIL FOR EROSION CONTROL

Farmer Should Be Familiar With His Land.

By Dean I. O. Schaub of the North Carolina State College-WNU Service.

It's hard for a farmer to adopt the kind of erosion control practices that would be most effective on his land unless he knows what type of soil covers his fields.

He needs to consider the thickness and texture of the topsoil and also the subsoil underneath. He needs to consider the slope of the land over each field, how badly the soil tends to erode and how much soil has been washed away already.

In some sections so much topsoil has been washed away that the farmers on it have to eke out a living as best they can by virtually tilling the subsoil.

There are soils being cultivated that are better suited to making brick than to producing crops. Within a single field there may be big differences in the type of soil found in various places. Or differences in the slope over a field cause it to be badly eroded in some places while in others there is still a fairly good layer of topsoil.

The badly eroded places should be retired to thick-growing cover crops, but the more level places may still be good for careful farming.

A striking example of differences in soil may be gained by examining the thin topsoil on a place where row crops have been grown for a long time, then compare it with the thick, spongy soil in a wooded area nearby.

A careful study of the soil on each farm has proved one of the most important steps in the "whole-farm" method of controlling erosion now being demonstrated in erosion control areas.

Buff Turkey Not Among Recognized Varieties

Whether or not the Buff turkey has become extinct, it has evidently lost its place in official recognition as a variety. The present standard recognizes six varieties, among which the Buff does not appear. A Department of Agriculture publication of something over 30 years ago, while recognizing the Buff as a variety, says of it that it is not generally known throughout the country and, in many localities, is almost unknown.

The standard calls for a pure buff color throughout, says this publication, but this shade of coloring is seldom seen. "As bred for market, these turkeys are of a reddish buff or light chestnut color, mixed with white and some dark shadings." It would seem very likely that this variety has become merged with the Bourbon Red of similar coloring and its identity lost. It may be that some may still be able to offer pure golden yellow turkeys of the old Buff variety but the chances are, says a writer in the Rural New-Yorker, that the offering would be what has been found before, Buff Bourbon Reds. Here would appear an opportunity to back-track to an old and lost variety and make it of such distinction as to call for favorable recognition.

To Tell Age of Sheep

The age of a sheep can be determined by looking at the teeth, says the Indiana Farmer's Guide. There are eight front teeth in the lower jaw and none in the upper jaw. Lamb teeth are small, white and narrow, and are replaced by larger, wider, permanent teeth at yearly intervals as follows: One year, two permanent teeth (center pair); two years, four permanent teeth; three years, six permanent teeth; four years, full mouth of eight permanent teeth. After four years there is no definite method of telling the age by the teeth.

Farm Notes

There are usually 10 eggs to a pound.

Turkeys have been known as guinea hens and cocks of India.

Flour makes up 37 per cent of the weight of the average loaf of bread.

"Large" eggs, so labeled, according to law, weigh 34 ounces a dozen, according to law.

Poultry experts estimate a pullet sets 16 to 17 pounds of feed before reaching maturity.

Only those pullets that are well-grown, well-fleshed, well-pigmented, and free from disease are profitable.

Horses and cows and sheep must rely on their lips to gather grass or grain, and they can take in only a lipful at a time.

A white Leghorn hen at Lady-smith, South Africa, laid an egg 3 1/4 inches long, 3 1/4 inches wide, and weighing 8 ounces, nearly three times that of an ordinary egg.

Espionage

IT WAS just nine o'clock when Helen, with a small valise in her hand, stepped buoyantly from the elevator to the sixth floor of a downtown building. As a matter of habit she glanced at the window opposite. Certain enough there sat old Jim in his customary place, reading the paper and waiting for her to open up the office.

He was a staid looking person with round shoulders and feet that scuffed. With half-closed eyes and an open mouth he would listen when spoken to and usually reply with a "Yeh." His connection with Mr. Henda's office was nothing more than "ornamental." Occasionally, however, if Helen and Henda were out, he would attempt to take a telephone message — which never proved a valuable aid, for he either misunderstood what was said or failed to know who had called.

For a moment, as Helen turned the key in the lock, she faintly sensed the strangeness of Jim's having been so early during the past two weeks. But the feeling swiftly faded into nothingness. She was completely unconscious of plotting of any kind.

Mr. Henda was a bachelor, a little past forty. It could very easily be seen why he had remained in a state of single blessedness and why, in all probability, he would remain single the rest of his life. Certain points in his character put him at a disadvantage. To the fair sex his most objectionable trait was his misanthropy. This quality displayed itself in his countenance, mainly around his eyes that were cold and calculating. To be sure, he always paid his bills, though somewhat tardily, but was very careful in involving nothing but the most necessary expenses.

From the time of Helen's first day at the office, Henda had set his mind on winning her. But her manner was merely courteous, nothing more, and he finally resigned himself to the fact that she did not care for him.

Suspicion and jealousy were also in his makeup. That was why he had old Jim come in early for the past two weeks. He, himself, never arrived much before noon. Lou Ward, a pleasant, attractive young man, was the object of his suspicion. This gentleman usually made a call at the office during the morning to see Henda. If he was not there, which was usually the case, Ward would sit down to wait a while and talk with Helen in the meantime.

Such a thing as a romance in his office, unless he was concerned, was not going to be allowed. So Jim had been instructed to sit in the inner office and keep his ears open. Up until this particular day Jim had been unable to report anything of interest to Henda.

About noon, Helen's employer came bustling into the office with his customary agitation. Helen had gone out to lunch and Jim sat in the inner office.

"Has Mr. Ward been in, Jim?"

"Yeh."

"What was the line of talk to-day?"

"They were talking of eloping to-night. He's going to call here at the office for her."

"Indeed! You don't say."

The clock on the nearby church had struck four and still Henda made no motion toward going home. His customary time of departure was 3:30. Alternately, he paced the floor, thinking what he would say to Ward when he came in, and rocked to and fro in the swivel chair, tapping the floor with his feet. He eyed Helen constantly, which made her very nervous. Her uneasiness he believed was due to her fears that he might have learned of what was to take place. Presently he thought of making some remark to startle her cold and, "Ah-ha," he said, eyeing the valise, "a suitcase. You must be going to elope, Miss Blake."

"Nothing like that," replied the girl, quietly.

Such calmness in lying was appalling, thought Henda. Well, he would try again. He remembered Helen had told him some time ago she was to take part in a play that night. That, of course, must have been arranged before she had ever thought of eloping.

"I hope you'll do well in the play tonight, Miss Blake," he ventured. "Thank you," smiled Helen. "Mr. Ward's identical words."

Henda paused a moment, picking his finger nails. "Is that what he said?"

"Yes," replied Helen indifferently.

Henda strode over to the closet and slipped on his coat. "Tell Jim he had better keep out of my sight tomorrow," he declared, as he yanked on a pair of gloves. Helen looked puzzled but no explanation was offered.

"I will," she said. "Good night, Mr. Henda."

ARMY BUYS PLANES

The largest order for air-fighting equipment ever given in the peacetime history of the country was recently placed by the Army which ordered 13 flying fortresses and 78 D-18-A bombers. When the contract is filled, the Army will have 52 huge long-distance bombers and more than 250 of the bombardment planes, two-engine affairs that attain a speed in excess of 225 miles per hour. In the fiscal year just ended, the Army let contracts for nearly 600 bombing, pursuit, attack, observation and other types of fighting planes. The objective of the Army Air Service is 2,320 modern, first-line aircraft by July 1, 1940.

HOUSING

The United States Housing Authority expects to spend $204,000,000 in low-cost housing and slum-clearance projects in the year ending June 30, 1939. While the organization has earmarked $427,399,000, there is a wide gap of time between earmarking and the actual disbursement of funds which usually begins after the work gets under way. Mr. Strauss head of the organization, says that cities in every part of the nation are making demands for Government loans to clear slums and build low-rent dwellings. In fact, the applications are coming in so fast, that the original $500,000,000 authorized in 1937, is nearing exhaustion. The work will be continued, however, under the grant of an additional $300,000,000 at the last session of Congress.

He Knows EVERYTHING--Almost!

by LAWRENCE HAWTHORNE

My dad knows more than any other man I ever saw
About the way this Country should be run!
He knows just when an' why they oughter make another law.
He knows how tax reduction should be done.
He always tries a murder case before the jury does.
An' knows just what the verdict oughter be—
But when he tries t' start the car, an' doesn't get a buzz,
He always yells for Mother, or fer me!

My dad could be a bigger business-man than Henry Ford,
An' make more money, if he wanted to!
If he was in a bank, he'd be the Chairman of the Board,
'Cause he knows jus' what bankers oughter do;
He'd be a better doctor than the smartest in the land;
The preachers would be pikers, too! But, gee,
There ain't a thing about our car that he can understand,
So he depends on Mother, or on me!

My dad could manage all the schools and colleges jus' right,
An' publish all the magazines an' books.
He knows how women oughter dress fer mornin', noon or night,
An' what each one should do t' help her looks!
My dad knows more than any other man, without a doubt—
(If you could hear him talk, you'd soon agree!)
But when he parks the car somewhere an' wants t' get it out,
He hands the job t' Mother, or t' me!

SPAWS CREEK

July 18.—Mr. and Mrs. George Hancy of this place went to their farm on Grassy on Sunday afternoon. Miss Osie Wingo of Morehead has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Wingo, over the week end. Mrs. Kathleen Bradley of near West Liberty was the Saturday night guest of Nola Patrick.

Elbert Ferguson was on Elk fork on business one day last week. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dennis of this place visited Mrs. Dennis' mother one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucas McCarty were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Gamble.

Church services were conducted here Sunday by Rev. Joe Frye of Maysville, and eight persons were baptized. A large crowd attended.

MATTHEW

July 4.—This is our happy fourth of July. This day has been celebrated for 162 years.

On June 26, Mrs. T. N. Nickell and her brother, Lewis Conley, motored to Volga to visit Mrs. Nickell's son, Charles Picklesimer and Mrs. Picklesimer and children. Mrs. Sallie Anne Cisco went with them to Salserville to visit Dr. J. S. Cisco and Mrs. C. S. Cisco.

July 10 will be church here at Bethany by Bro. J. F. Walters, an able speaker.

Our crops are growing nicely with plenty of good rain and good sunshine.

We will be glad when our school begins with Russell Brown as our teacher. A real good boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie Brown. We will have a good school.

T. N. Nickell and Lewis Conley made a trip to Ashland on business and pleasure last week.

Blackberries are plentiful this year but other fruits are scarce. So try my readers to get several cans and jellies.

We have a great neighborhood here with no drunks, no murder cases. We are so thankful for a place where we can go to church on Sundays or stay at home and read our Bibles undisturbed. I do wish that each one of us reads this could have the same quietude.
